The Hi-Lites

Kelly High School

Kelly, Kansas

*Volume XIV
May, 1962*

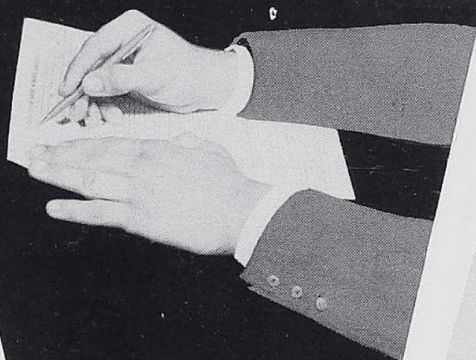

DEDICATION

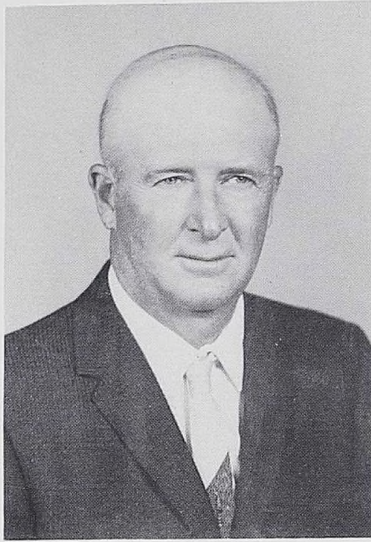

Anniversaries are times for looking both forward and backward. But success in today's world depends not so much on the past as it does on the future. Therefore, the twenty-fifth graduating class of Kelly High School dedicates its Hi-Lites to the future students of K.H.S.

It is significant to note that the twenty-fifth graduating class has the honor of receiving their diplomas in a new gymnasium. This fact indicates that confidence in their high school exists among the people of Kelly. Future students will inherit the responsibility of maintaining that confidence.

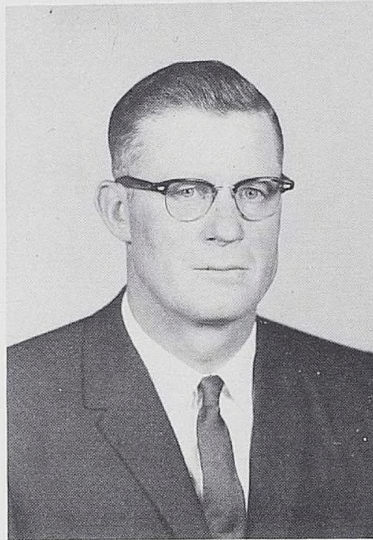

But an even greater duty will burden future students of K.H.S. For it will be their record of achievement that will either sustain the life of the school or sound its death bell. Their reaction to the challenge will decide whether or not we may one day return to help the golden jubilee class celebrate its graduation.

A series of thin, light-colored lines radiate from the bottom center of the page, extending towards the left and right edges, creating a subtle geometric pattern.

Freshmen officers: John Kuhlman, president; Linus Enneking, vice president; and Kenneth Hermes, treasurer, start the day by putting the flag up.

Here's how it's done.
Mr. Dooley presents the problem in math class.

MATH

Freshmen algebra students work intently at their desks for the answer.

Sophomore geometry students, Laura Wessel, Louis Stallbaumer, and Richard
Glissman, find that drawing the problem on the board doesn't always make the answer come any easier.

Betty Kay Hutfles
gives the idea that math requires concentration.

LAUER FUNERAL HOME

Dolores Heinen and Lambert Bokern, realizing that high school days are nearly over, fill their spare time with reading.

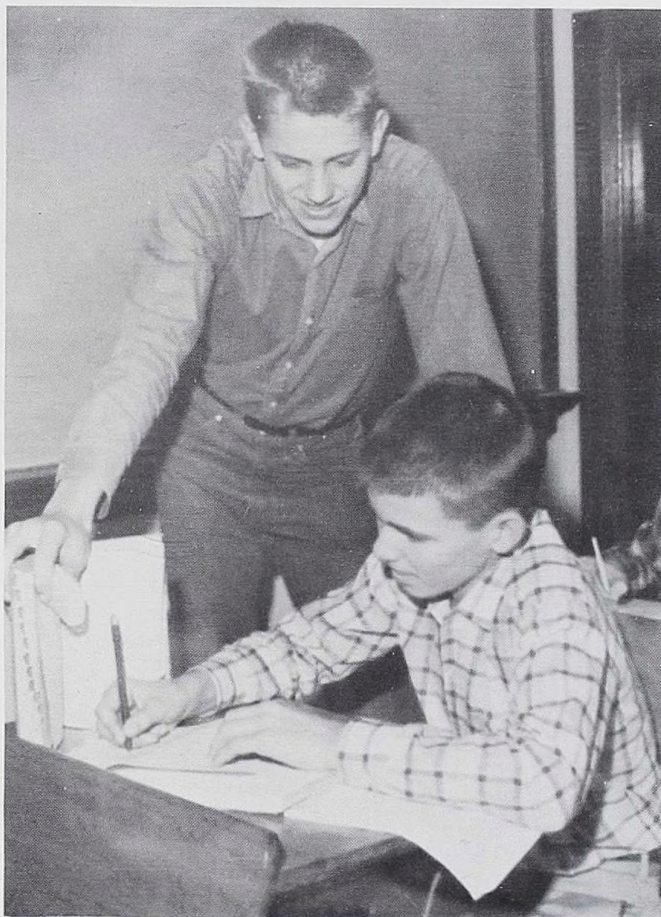

The object of Shirley Heinen's admiration is Joan Kohake's poem, one of many written by English II students.

LANGUAGE

Gary Hunninghake, eraser in hand, advises Kenny Hermesch that Latin translations don't come any easier in second year study.

Donald Huerter and Verna Mae Steinlage learn just how sentences are constructed by taking them apart, literally.

HARSH DRUG STORE
CITIZENS STATE BANK, SENECA

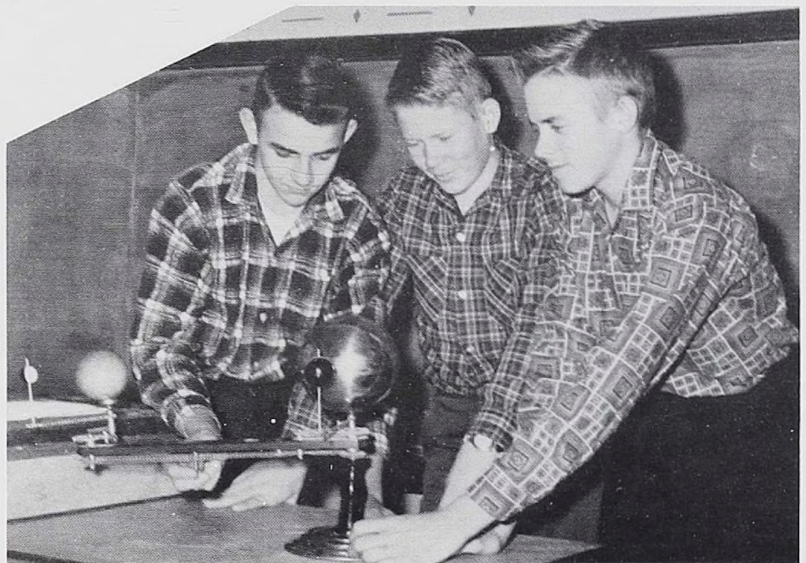

Sophomore biologists, Rosalee Haverkamp and Kenneth Holthaus take notes while Vera Enneking and Glen Niehues make use of the microscopes to study amoeba.

SCIENCE

Physics students, Albert Rottinghaus, Georgina Haverkamp, Frank Wessel, and Rosemary Korte, experiment to determine the friction of a rolling object.

"So that's the way the world goes 'round," muse freshman general science students Gerald Rottinghaus, James Heinen, and Richard Heinen.

GEORGE'S MEAT MARKET

"You're clear on this side!" Clarence Brokamp directs Harold Brokamp in one of the daily practice spins for driver's education.

In shop, Kenneth Haverkamp sands the side of his gun case while Charles Enneking makes sure that the riser of his end table is a perfect fit.

FUTURE

CITIZENS

STUDY

Current reading keeps social science students Mark Hermes, Mark Heinen, Lynn Haverkamp, Robert Rettele, and David Huerter, informed on the world's problems.

STRATHMAN'S STUDIO LOG CABIN

GIRLS AT WORK

Machine-age artists Rosemary Korte, Dorothy Heinen, and Mary Jane Schultejans discover the type-writer has a variety of uses.

"Twice as nice!" is the verdict Mary Clara Niehues gives as she appraises Mary Catherine Bowhay's big and little sister sewing project.

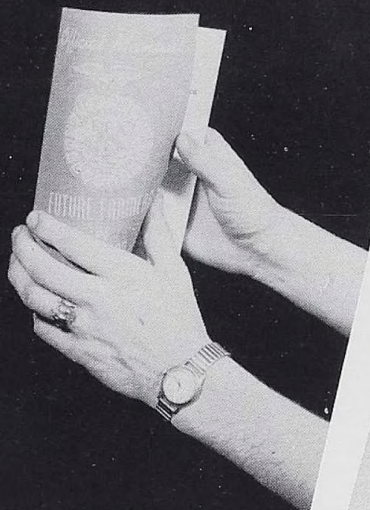

Waiting for the count-down are tap-dancers Mary Clara Niehues, Judy Kohake, Mary Catherine Bowhay, Donna Huerter, Kathleen Ronnebaum, and Betty Kay Hutfles.

NEWSPAPER AND ANNUAL

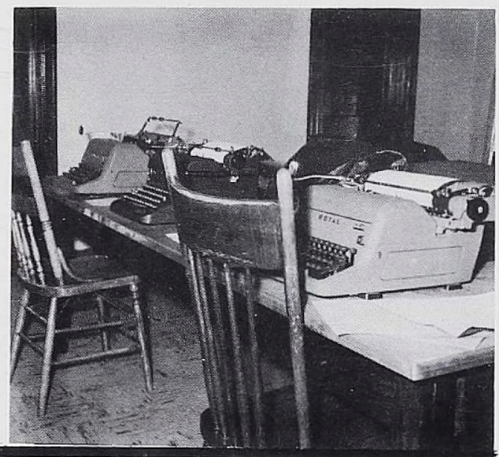

Charles Enneking seems elated to learn of the ten dollar prize Kelly received for having the largest delegation at the Catholic School Press Association Midwest Regional Meeting at College of St. Theresa Nov. 18, 1961.

Mary Jane Schultejans, Georgina Haverkamp, Rosemary Korte, and Dorothy Heinen catch up on the news around Kelly High. An important part of a paper is having readers.

AND

Sophomore library helpers Judy Kohake, Joan Kohake and Laura Wessel, standing, and Mildred Bokern, Kathleen Ronnebaum, Shirley Heinen, Rosalee Haverkamp, and Vera Enneking keep the library in working order daily.

SERVICE

Archbishop Hunkler gives his blessing after the dedication of Saint Bede's Gymnasium on Dec. 5, 1961. Its facilities are used by students of both grade and high school.

GYM DEDICATION

Athletic club officers Jim Rottinghaus, Charles Enneking, and Lambert Bokern admire the contents of the trophy case. All that empty space should provide sufficient incentive for future K.H.S. teams.

VALENTINE ROYALTY

The Heart Hop, sponsored by the junior class, proved a very successful venture. Reigning over the festivities as King and Queen of Hearts were Charles Enneking and Mary Clara Niehues. Joseph and Patty Dooley served as crown bearers. Attending the royal couple were Jim Rottinghaus and Mary Catherine Bowhay and Lambert Bokern and Dolores Heinen. A check for $50 was sent to the Nemaha County Heart Fund from the proceeds of the dance.
